

Chief Todd V. Renshaw began his law enforcement career in 1983 in Allen, Texas, where he served as a patrol officer, detective and sergeant. He left Allen after receiving an appointment as Captain of Police in Coppell, Texas. Chief Renshaw began preparing for his current position as Chief of Police by earning a Bachelors of Arts in Sociology from the University of Texas at Dallas and a Masters of Science in Criminal Justice Management from Sam Houston State University. He has continued to set high goals for himself and prepare himself for the dynamic needs of a fast-growing city by attending and graduating from the Law Enforcement Management Institute's Leadership Command College and the FBI National Academy (class #208).

Not only has he been an inspirational leader within the Frisco Police Department, he has been an active leader in the community with activities to include Volunteer Youth Sports Coach, Frisco Kiwanis Charter President, Frisco Baseball Association board member, Frisco High School Site-Based Decision Making committee and the North Central Texas Council of Government's Criminal Justice Policy Review Committee. Chief Renshaw is married with three children.

Since becoming Chief of the Frisco Police Department in 1994, the Frisco Police Department has become notably dedicated to partnering with the citizens of Frisco through his community-policing efforts. He has implemented a great many community-oriented programs, including: Citizens' Police Academy, Citizens on Patrol, Annual Health and Safety Fair and National Night Out participation.
